West Welcomes Russ Bid JFK Reduces To Revive Test Ban Talks Military Rule Over Okinawa

Extraordinary Parley Held By Rusk, Gromyko

GENEVA (AP) - Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko held an extraordinary private meeting Monday night after the United States, Britain and Russia announced willingness to resume negotiations for a nuclear test-ban treaty.

In a 30-minute session at the Soviet villa, Rusk and Gromykowho met at Gromyko's urgingconsidered ways of getting the stalled talks going again. They also discussed the explosive Berlin situation, but informants did not disclose how deeply they went into the problem.

The decision to go back to the bargaining table was revealed by Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin on the fringe of the 17-nation disarmament conference meeting here.

He told a news conference the Soviet Union wanted to resume nuclear test-ban talks. Spokesmen for the American and British delegations promptly welcomed the

European Secret Army Is Ordered On War Footing

ALGIERS (AP)-Europeans opposed to Algerian independence angrily greeted the cease-fire ending the 71/2 year nationalist rebellion Monday with paralyzing general strikes in all major cities. But for the moment, at least, Algeria was spared the bloodbath many fear will come.

The cease-fire, signed Sunday b French and Algerian nationalist negotiators, went into effect at noon. French headquarters for Algeria reported later with a sigh of relief: "All is well."

But the French were referring to the fact that not a shot had been exchanged after the ceasefire between French troops and the volatile nationalist rebels still dispersed in the mountains. ret Army Vows Fight

Military Leaders Replace Governors In Five Provinces

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina AP)-President Arturo Frondizi ordered military commanders Monday night to replace governors in five provinces where Peronist candidates won in a landslide election victory Sunday. Informed sources said it was only a matter of time before similar steps would be taken in five other provinces where Peronists were due to assume gover-

THE DAY THESE WIRE PLIERS CUT THROUGH ROPE

It was a quiet day in a quiet Baltimore neighborhood. Not that telephone lineman Clarence Bivens particulary noticed. He was absorbed in work, at his high perch atop a utility pole.

Suddenly Clarence heard the frightening sound of a child choking. He looked in all directions and at first saw nothing. Then, some hundred yards away, he spotted a small boy hanging by his neck, from a rope tied to a tree limb.

Hardly believing his eyes, Clarence clambered down the pole, dashed to the tree and severed the rope with his pliers.

Happily, the four-year-old boy escaped with just mild rope burns on his neck. Lineman Bivens had prevented a tragic ending to a child's game that had toyed with danger.

For five years, Clarence Bivens has been using his skill and tools to provide dependable telephone service. But his lineman's pliers never performed a more important service than on the day he cut the rope.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

There probably are as many different impressions of what the celebrated Rebel war cry sounded like as there are of how best to make a mint julep. One student of American speechways, Dr. Allen Walker Read, decided the battle cry was: yai, yai, yi, yai, yi. Another researcher concluded it was: wha-who-eeeeee. A third asserted that the vocal explosion, supposed to have had the effect of an old Indian war whoop, was: yipee ah yay kai yo.

made it sound like yee-aay-eee! The Confederates developed their yell under the highly emotional strain of battle and didn't arrive at any conventionalized speech patterns that could be easily put into

In "Gone With the Wind," Margaret Mitchell

'The "Frank Menke Encyclopedia of Sports' (pub. by A. S. Barnes & Co.) recorded how at least one version of the Rebel war cry had historic effect after the war was over:

"Rutgers defeated Princeton 6 to 4 in that first collegiate game, Nov. 6, 1869. Princeton challenged for a return match, Nov. 13, 1870, and went into the second game making full use of a Rebel yell which the Confederates used. The Princetons figured this might frighten the Rutgers athletes.

"When a play was about to get into motion, Princeton raised its yell . . . and emerged as the victor by the score of 8 to 0. . . . It required a lot of breath, which the game also demanded. The wily Princetons schooled some of their fellow students in the Rebel call and when the Princetons ran out of wind, the students on the sidelines let loose. This was the beginning of cheering at football games. -CLARK KINNAIRD

Shell dealers suggest 7 things to try if your car won't start

ANY TIME you have trouble getting A your engine going, the first thing to do is check the obvious.

For example, the fuel gauge. It's astonishing how often an empty fuel tank is all that keeps the engine from starting.

According to American Automobile Association figures, motorists run out of fuel more than 5,000 times per day.

If you have an automatic transmission, make sure your selector is in the correct position for starting.

Next step is to run through these seven tips from Shell dealers. Any one of them could help you get started.

Use the starter in short bursts. A long, steady grinding runs your battery down drastically. In fact, if the car won't start in the first few attempts, it's a good idea to wait several minutes before trying again. This lets the battery recover some of its life.

If you have a manual shift, keep the clutch pressed all the way down when you're starting. This helps to take some of the strain off the battery, particularly in cold weather.

NOTE: An engine in good mechanical condition should usually start in 3 or 4 seconds. Today's Super Shell gasoline can help. During coldest months, it contains an extra dose of Butane, a special quickstart ingredient.

Keep the battery connectors tight. If battery terminal connectors are loose, you may not get full battery voltage, when you try to start. With reduced voltage, the engine is harder to start. Sometimes the starter won't even turn the engine. It's easy to keep connectors tight.

All you need is a suitable wrench. Even a pair of pliers will do.

If you have repeated starting troubles, your battery may be weak. Your Shell dealer can recharge it-or install a new one if needed.

4 Get maximum value from your choke. If you have an automatic choke, give the accelerator pedal a tap before you start. This sets the choke in the correct position - the way it should be for easy starting. NOTE: A small choke adjustment can often cure cold weather starting troubles. Your Shell dealer can do it for

If you have a manual choke, remember to use it! When you pull the choke out, you increase the proportion of fuel in the air-fuel mixture. Could be all your engine needs for a start, especially on a cold morning. After you've started and warmed up, be sure to push the choke all the way

5 Wipe moisture off the distributor, ignition leads and spark plugs. Condensed moisture-which can be a problem in cars left out overnight-could keep you from getting started. It's easy to find the distributor. Just follow the ignition leads-the wires that come from the spark plugs. They lead right to the distributor. Before you wipe the moisture away, make sure the ignition is turned off and nobody works the starter.

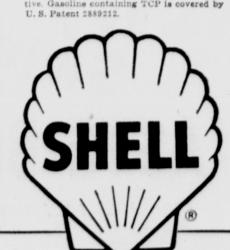

6 Turn off the lights, radio, heater, heater fan. This way there are no extra demands on the battery. It can devote its full power to starting the engine. NOTE: Don't forget to turn lights on again when you start up.

7 Never pump the accelerator if you suspect flooding. It only makes the flooding worse. Instead, try this: Wait 2 or 3 minutes. Then press the accelerator to the floor once and hold it there while the starter cranks the engine. When the engine does start, gradually let the accelerator return to idle position.

Here are the 9 ingredients in Super Shell-and what they do to give your car top performance

- #1 is Butane for quick starts. Butane is so eager to get going it could even boil on ice.
- #2 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups. #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds
- #4 is gum preventive to help keep

Our Population Growing Rapidly

Population of the United States is growing fast. The 1880 census revealed that it had exceeded 50 million for the first time. After the 1920 census people were a little awed at learning that it was well past 100 million. And by 1970, only eight years from now, it should be somewhere between 208 million and 215

In making this estimate the Census Bureau warns that it is not a prediction but a projection. If Americans become even more philoprogenitive than they are, these figures will be

Federal and state budgets, and the federal debt, have been increasing even more rapidly than population. From that fact, it could be projected-no, it doesn't bear thinking of!

Not surprisingly, there will be more teenagers in 1970 than there are now, according to this projection. There will also be more people over 85, though they will still be a considerably smaller group than the teen-agers.

In this distinctly elderly group, women are expected to outnumber men in a proportion of about eight to five. Men may have stronger muscles, but women are more durable.

By then, there will be roughly 10 acres of land for each inhabitant, and some of this land will be too poor to grow much if any food.

Obviously, then, the city population will continue to grow faster. The more people, the more of them will have to be crammed into cities because that is where they work. As population changes, in proportionate age-groups and in sheer numbers, there will be changes in the quality of our country.

Will they be changes for the better? The Census Bureau hasn't the temerity to offer a projection which is qualitative.

Church And State

The circulars keep piling up on all sorts of subjects abroad tell a graphic story of the people over the course of events. In came one from Americans United for Separation of Church and State POAU). I do not know how to pronounce POAU, but that does not matter. This circular, like so many others, asks for money and apparently they want the money to educate Senators, Congressmen, State Senators and Assemblymen, newspapers, columnists, etc. It is not altogether clear in the circular what POAU is about except that it says: "Thousands turned out to cheer John Glenn. Will you come out to cheer for Separation of Church and

'Your chance to show how you feel will come in a few weeks-at two public rallies with Dr. C. Stanley Lowell, from Washington, D. C."

I do not see the connection between John Glenn and the quarrel over Separation of Church and State, except that the name of John Glenn attracts attention the way Marilyn Monroe used to.

We can skip the pitch and go on with the very general subject of public excitement over what people believe to be true. POAU believes that Church and State should be separated in this country and I have never come across anyone who disagreed with that general notion, but as is usual among free men, the definitions are varied:

1. Some hold that any relationship between the government and a religious founded and conducted school is an negation of the doctrine that no religion should become an establishment in this country, even to giving small children orange juice;

2. Others hold that the Roman Catholic Church has designs on our educational system and plans to take it over:

3. Still others do not object to the Catholics running their own schools because it reduces taxes but object to Catholic children riding in municipal school buses;

4. Some are avowed atheists and desire that their children should not be corrupted by being told about God.

And there are many other variations on this general theme. None of these folks object to anyone teaching the children about Karl Marx or about a sane nuclear policy, or a biologic interpretation of sex such as recently appeared in a magazine telling girls how to prepare themselves for eventual husbands. Nothing is said about numerous offenses to good taste; to say nothing about public or private morals. But there is a terrifying fear that Pope John XXIII will take a plane, fly over here, and install himself in Blair House,

Personally, I cannot get too excited about these fears. I do fear Communism, not only abroad but here at home. I fear the deterioration of human character under the stress of Marxist materialism overlaid on American pragmatism. I fear that the checks on human conduct, the moral restraints on human lusts are much more important than quarrelling over which bigotry is superior.

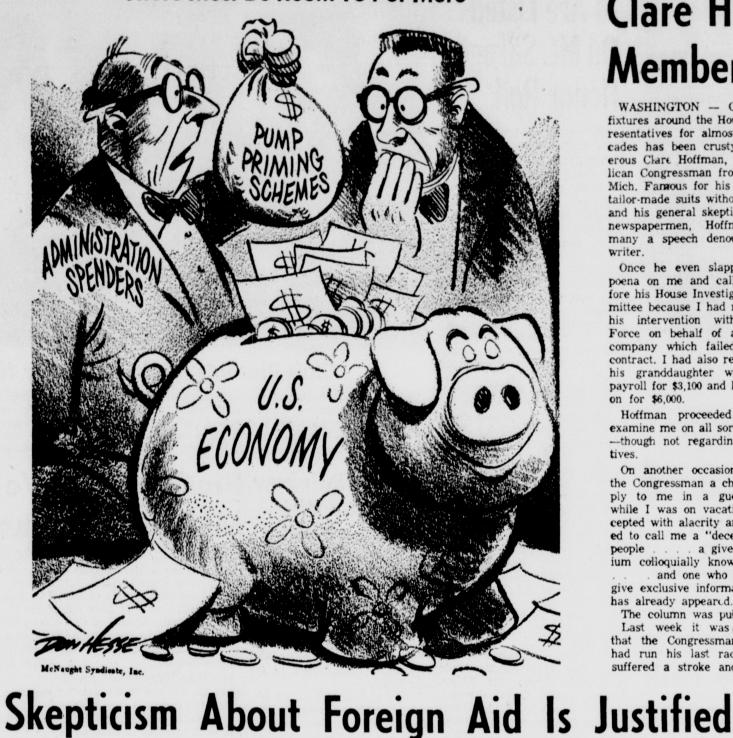

Each man has his own enthusiasms, his own antagonisms and his own expression of views.

(I am, at this moment, interrupted by a young lady, representing a dance studio, who chose to call me on the telephone to offer me free dancing lessons, which is an old come-on to get me involved. I bawled at her and told her never to disturb me again because I am busy at work. She said that she had her work to do, too. That apparently is her opinion of her rights and she gets paid for it.)

But some people hold opinions and express them. not because they get paid but because they live in fear. POAU apparently lives in fear that Pope John XXIII will take over the United States, just as Brigadier General Holdridge of the Minute Men writes voluminous letters to all and sundry to denounce the evils of Roman Catholicism and a little paper published in New Jersey writes about the evils of Jews. Apparently all these people are so unsure of themselves and what they believe that they compulsively express hatred for those who do not agree with them.

The pity of it all is that the most potent political and social evil in the world is Communism as propagated out of Soviet Russia and Red China. One would expect that all the religions of God would unite against the common enemy and not fight each other. But that is not so.

JFK's Conflicts Of Interest

While campaigning for President, John F. Kennedy had quite a bit to say about conflicts of interest that cropped up in the Eisenhower administration. Springfield, Ohio October 17, JFK

"Every challenger for public office, especially for the Presidency, talks about a great crusade to end corruption; to obtain government clean as a hound's tooth. But experience has shown that promises are not enough. For ours is a government of men, not of promises, and some men yield to temptation . . . Other men see no wrong in pursuing their private interest in their public capacity. The problem is not merely one of deep freezes and vicuna coats.'

He then proceeded to outline eight criteria for picking good men for public office, one of them that "no federal appointee to a regulatory agency shall represent any view other than that of the public interest.

To one of these all-important agencies, the Federal Power Commission, Kennedy appointed two public-interest men, then a Texas oilman, Lawrence O'Connor.

At about this time, the gray and grizzled Republican leader of the Senate, Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, complained to Kennedy that every Kennedy appointee from Illinois was coming from the Adlai Stevenson law

So when a vacancy in the Federal Power Commission opened, the President turned to Dirksen, who handed in a list of three names, including Harold Woodward of Chicago, a former member of the Illinois Utilities Commission. He was picked by Kennedy for the vital agency which regulates the electric power companies, the gas and oil transmisruptcy cases to his son's firm. When Woodward came up before the Senate Commerce Committee for cross-examination, his sponsor, the gray and grizzled Dirksen, sat beside him, like a belligerent hen mothering one lone chick Woodward was asked about the shares of utility stock he owned. He replied that he and his wife each held 11 shares of Northern Illinois Gas and his wife held 34 shares, now expanded to 68, of Commonwealth Edison. He had sat as hearing examiner on a Commonwealth Edison rate case in 1958 before the Illinois Utilities Commission at the time he held this stock, and had OK'd the company's request for a rate increase.

In fact, he said he always approved rate increases. This is not exactly the public-interest commissioner JFK promised the coun-

This was the kind of conflict of interest for which John F. Kennedy criticized Eisenhower in the 1960 campaign.

Nevertheless the Senate committee voted 17 to 0 for confirmation, many of its members without having been to the hearings or before the hearing record was published so they could read Woodward's testimony.

The nomination went immediately to the Senate floor where, with few Senators present, it would have passed with no debate. In fact, it did pass. Then alert Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin objected that the hearing record had not been printed so the Senators could vote intelligently. So the nomination was recalled for further discussion. Woodward will, of course, be confirmed by the Senate for three reasons: 1. Republican Senators will vote for him because he's a Republican; 2. Most Democrats will vote for him because he's a Kennedy appointee; 3. Most Senators have fo gotten the promises made during the election cam-

They have forgotten what John F. Kennedy himself said, when a candidate at Springfield, Ohio, October 17, 1960: "Every challenger for public office, especially for the Presidency, talks about a great crusade to end corruption. But promises are not enough.'

Doctors And Lawyers

By John Crosby

To my very great surprise, I guy and the bad guy and they're discover that the cowboy has receded into the woodwork temporarily as the great hero of television. I may have been the last to find this out. The big hero of our time on TV is the lawyer or the surgeon. Perry Mason is going stronger than ever. So is Dr. Kildare. (I had to go all the way to Monte Carlo to catch Dr. Kildare at the International TV festival. I'd never seen it in this country.) And, one of the newer sawbones is Ben Casey, who is a neuro-surgeon, of all things. In the field of courtroom drama, a theatrical form almost as stylized as the kubuki dancers, one of the hot properties is "The Defenders," an outgrowth of a script Reginald Rose did for "Studio One," back in the ice age of television. (TV is not the only medium discovering the courtroom. On Broadway, there's "Shot in the Dark." The world of the cinema has "Judgment at Nuremburg.")

Reginald Rose, who is script editor of "The Defenders" and who writes many of the shows, says he has always been interested in the law. (His "Twelve Angry Men," a TV drama later done as a movie, was one of the best TV originals in my memory. It was an excellent movie, too.)

"CBS had been after me to do a series for a long time and I settled on 'The Defenders' because I'd done it as 'Studio One' in 1957. I was afraid the show was going to be too intellectual, but it's been bought by a lot of people.

"Lawyers are the new American image. They have taken over the presidencies of most of the big companies, even the movie companies. Of course, the courtroom is a ready-made location for a drama. Any kind of dramatic story you want to tell you can turn into a courtroom drama. A courtroom adds detail and excite-

"The courtroom offers what a Western offers. There's the good going to draw guns - different kinds of guns - on each other. The show is a combination of law. legal ethics, and personal morals. Often the values are mixed when we explore, as we did in a script I wrote, about how it feels to defend a man you know is guilty and win. The law we have is fallible but as long as it errs on the side of mercy, I'm in favor of it. The man in the case I mentioned was a cop who killed a boy who had killed his child.

"The courtroom is more exciting because there is more mystery. Will he be able to prove this point? How will it turn out? How much is at stake? In a hospital - it's only will the operation be successful? There are no variations." (I don't think Mr. Rose has listened to much soap opera, which is full of variations.)

"Most plots are the same as 'Superman' or 'Bat Man.' It just depends on what level they're done. We have a lawyer who reads the scripts. Sometimes, he tells us: 'This can't happen in a court of law.' Then we find a legal way for it to happen."

I asked him whether he thought there was a trend away from fiction toward the documentary especially the fictionalized documentary like the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which he wrote for televi-

"Fiction may be disappearing but I don't think the stage is going to fold. If you get too much of anything it starts to recede, but I always believe it will be back. Westerns were big a few years ago. Now there are only a few left on the air - but they'll be back.' Reginald Rose is a veteran of the television wars, dating to its earliest days. I asked him if he ever watched the stuff any more. "Only the New York Giants and sometimes the late show. Our

Commissioners Approve Health, Roads Budgets

Mason Voices Opposition

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners last night virtually approved the Health Department's estimated budget for the 1962-63 fiscal year and did approve the County Roads Department budget on a split vote with Commissioner John T. Mason dis-

The only question to be clarified concerning the Health Department budget is the matter of the salary of one sanitarian. The position has been vacant since William Harvey Shockley retired in December. Commissioner Mason believes the position should be filled or the salary deleted from the budget.

The commissioners went over the Health Department budget with Mrs. Jennie J. Graham, administrative assistant, who pointed out that the budget for next year, insofar as the county is concerned, is about $1,000 less then the previous budget the previous budget.

The county's share of next The county's share of next year's overall budget of $235,-509.00 is $103,216. including $3,-416 in non matching funds. $104,188 Last Year

Last year the county's share totaled $104,188 in both matching and non matching funds.

Mrs. Grahame asked the commissioners to consider the appointment of Dr. Martin Rothstein as assistant county health officer which has the approval area's most influential labor lead-closer look at soils and conserof the State Health Department.

Hours Downtown She explained that Dr. Roth-century, has retired from the county.
